THE GOBENA STORY

In the summer of 2007, Steve and Danae traveled from central Illinois to Ethiopia to adopt their little girl, Eva. The contrast in cultures was remarkable. The Ethiopians they met lived in poverty, but were rich in their sense of community and close relationships.

Gobena (pronounced gō•bīn•ŭh), a 70-year-old plaitain farmer, had found Eva abandoned near his home. "Because she is God's soul," Gobena and his wife, Mulunesh, took care of the newborn baby for about a month. Realizing they would not be able to provide for Eva, they traveled 150 miles to a police station to seek help. There they learned about adoption and decided that putting Eva in an orphanage to be adopted was the best option for her. Eva is now a member of Steve and Danae's family and is a constant reminder that there is always hope, as long as there are people who care.

Gobena's compassion and sense of community inspired Steve and Danae to start Gobena Coffee, a ministry where 100% of the net profits were reinvested in the lives of orphaned children throughout the world. Today, Gobena Coffee is a for-profit business partnering with Lifesong for Orphans to carry out the original mission...each bag of coffee sold blesses the lives of children.
